SCANDALL FESTIVAL OF LIES

THE ADELAIDE ORGANISERS OF THE AUSTRALIAN FESTIVAL OF LIGHT HAVE FALSIFIED THE RESULTS OF A SURVEY THEY HAVE CONDUCTED ON ATTITUDES TO MORAL STANDARDS.

The surveys which were intended to demonstrate to the media that the assumption that most people favoured a more permissive attitude to such moral questions as abortion, marriage, divorce and homosexuality, was wrong, produced results which were at odds with the official stands of the Festival.

According to a member of the Gay Activists Alliance who has infiltrated the organisation, the organisers of the survey, Mrs. R. Phillips and Mr. Wilson, wanted to get 10,000 answers to the survey to 'prove' that the Festival of Light infact had a huge 'silent majority' support. The figures were to be released prior to the visit of Mary Whitehouse to Adelaide.

The questionnaire was headed Marriage and Family Survey, and contained the following questions, to be answered YES, NO, UNSURE

- 1: Do you think that stable life-long marriage is best for most men and women?
- 2: Do you think that people are generally better off in the long run if they are faithful to one sex partner all their lives?
- 3: Should divorce be made available 'on demand', to either husband or wife, regardless of the other partner's wishes?
- 4: Do you think that stable life-long marriage is the best environment for children to grow up in?
- 5: If money were no problem, would you prefer your child (under 4) to be cared for at home by its mother, rather than at a childcare centre?
- 6: Should sex education without moral guidelines be taught as part of the normal school curriculum?
- 7: Do you think that your attitudes to life have been influenced by things you have read, seen and heard?
- 8: Would you like protection from books, films and TV programs

- 9: Should women be given the right to have unborn babies destroyed if children are unwanted or inconvenient for them?
- 10: Should homosexual behaviour be regarded by the community and government as normal and acceptable?

Copies of the survey form were to be distributed by local light groups to 'your own street, neighbours and at work'; they were told that 'it doesn't matter if you overlap, and that it doesn't matter how we get the forms filled in: but we want 10,000' and that in fact, getting people to fill out the form twice was advantageous because 'it made people think twice about these things'.

The actual results of the survey showed an overwhelming acceptance of homosexuality, dislike of censorship (almost 100% NO vote for question 8) and majority votes in favour of abortion on demand and easing of regulations on divorce. These results, suggesting that there has been a very considerable easing of moral imperialism, have been doctored to conform with the Festival's own wishes: the latest issue of 'Light' (the Festival's publication) shows only 55% accepting homosexuality, 100% support of marriage (question 4), and questions 7 and 9 have been conveniently mislaid. We charge the Festival of Light with deliberately misleading the public by using falsified information in an attempt to uphold its tenuous moralistic attitudes by appealing to mass public support.

Moralizing seems traditionally to have been the activity of immoral hypocrites. The sermons that came from Nixon and Agnew for law-and-order and for a renewed sense of national dedication now ring only slightly hollower than they did when we first heard them: Watergate and bribery only confirmed what we knew from the start, that these men were frauds.

It is almost as if there were a direct psychological connection between an inability to cope personally with one's own being-in-the-world and an intense desire to convince others of what one wishes one was. To persuade others to accept the values that you yourself would like to be living somehow compensates for failing to live by those standards. Christ's observation about seeing the plank of wood in your own eye before doing something about the speck in your brother's eye, is pretty obviously good advice.

This week Adelaide is to be put through an exercise in moral imperialism which is as disgustingly self-righteous in its attitudes as it is out-dated and shallow in its social analysis—and they are doing it in Christ's name.

Initiated by those tight-assed local crusading Christians, Dr. John Court, Rev. Lance Shilton and Peter Daniels, the Festival of Light (more Adelaide than Australian, one suspects) is trying to engineer a return to those good old days of censorship, virginity, marriage, heterosexuality, families, cleanliness, purity—in short a reintroduction of the rule of fear and deceit that has plagued man for centuries and which has stunted all human relationships.

Salvation of the soul obtained at the expense of the body is no salvation at all—for all life is life in the body.

The restriction of all sexual activity to the marital bedroom has fucked up more people than all the political tyrants and despots. These latter-day Calvins should be met by as much opposition as freedom-loving people can muster. Their rallies and meetings should be infiltrated and disrupted, their vile propaganda should not be allowed to go unchallenged, their fear and hypocrisy should be exposed ruthlessly and unremittingly.

These people are simply telling lies about themselves and their own experiences. Does John Court masturbate? Did he ever? Do his children, and what of their guilt? Does Lance Shilton know of the suffering, torture and boredom that most married people endure for the sake of an institution which has long since outlived its usefulness? Or of the intolerable lives that homosexuals live in the fear of their way-of-loving being discovered? Does Peter Daniels really think that unless people are married when they fuck that they are doing something bad? And who the hell is this Mary Whitehouse person: the Festival P.R. man really has to be joking when he comes out with a press release headed 'Mary Who', describing her as a lighthouse, and saying that she has the capacity 'to absorb criticism like custard absorbs the prunes.'

That's one person we can well do without.

Already the Festival of Light (kite-flying) has been affected by people who see the possibility of human existence apart from the restricting influences of church and institutions.

Through this week the Festival is holding many more shows that positively cry out for some enlivening. On Thursday afternoon, Mary Whitehouse arrives at the airport, and on Friday afternoon there's a women's rally in Festival Hall; on Saturday night there's Youth Night at Apollo Stadium and the whole thing ends with a march and rally on Sunday afternoon.
