

9 March 1933.

Dr. W.T. Calman, F.R.S.,
Dept. of Zoology,
British Museum, (N.H.),
Cromwell Road,
London, S.W. 7.

Dear Dr. Calman:

I have noted Salisbury's address at the Linnean.
I hope I may be able to attend at your invitation, but I little doubt whether Salisbury himself is much inclined to be influenced by my arguments. I judge this only from his reply in Nature. Perhaps, however, it may be worth while to speak.

Yours sincerely,