Dear Fisher

I cannot remember if I said that I have heard nothing from Nora Barlow which in the circumstance means she can give you no information.

I am sorry to see that the Bishop of Winchester has been ill. I saw Blacker some days ago and I suggested to him the possibility of opening up the question of family allowances in the medical profession somewhat on the lines suggested by you as the

Worcester meeting in regard to the clergy. Blacker is anxious to get a move on in regard to some of his proposals in which you are especially interested; but, like Malbrook "he does not know how to begin". I wish you could have a good long talk with him some day on these points. I know he would appreciate it. No answer

Yours sincerely

Dear Major Darwin:

I would gladly salve the log. table, as there is a constant demand in the Laboratory for such books, especially when there are a lot of voluntary workers about.

About Lythrum I am still greatly puzzled to know why it is that the trimorphism is brought about by such a complicated mechanism, and am trying to see why some simpler systems have not been used, i.e. if in some way these simpler systems would not work, or would lead to undesirable consequences. This may be a long excursus for nothing; it illustrates the need for studying what does not exist, as much as what does.

Yours sincerely,
