

7th. October, 1929.

Major Leonard Darwin, Sc.D.,
Cripps's Corner,
Forest Row,
Sussex.

Dear Major Darwin,

Yes, I agree with Haldane, on selection in general, it is only on my Dominance theory that at first sight he was inclined to attack me. Perhaps he will.

I regard the grosser types of mutations as chiefly of use in producing physiological isolation, and for this reason as frequently found as between nearly related species.

I am re-writing most of Chapter IV, it is a burden.

Yours sincerely,