

2.1.29

CRIPPS'S CORNER,
FOREST ROW,
SUSSEX.

My dear Fisher

Thanks for letting me see III again, with your counter-notes.

As to (6), I think my remarks indicate some muddle-headedness.

As to (10), I forget exactly what I said. I suppose dominance might depend on a single factor, not correlated with other factors. By an independent quality I meant not such a quality as the temp^{erature} ~~of~~ of the blood, which might need a change in a hundred other factors to make a change in it beneficial, and in regard to which evolution must be very slow. In fact I feel a little alarmed that you take my remarks so seriously. If you think the matter over again, and stick to your point, then I shall be satisfied.

I made ^{before getting your last} some rough notes, partly for my own edification on some of these points, and I send you a copy which my wife has written out for me by dictation.
Now don't bother to comment on them, ^{nor} ~~or~~ return them.

I have not attached V yet.

Yours sincerely

L. Darwin