My dear Fisher

I am glad to hear that you may go to the U.S.A. It will be interesting and I hope remunerative. I have few words of wisdom to shed. The late Master of Balliol went to Columbia University with a cut and dried set of lectures, and found that his audiences was so much lower in calibre than he expected, that he had to scrap the lot. I should strongly advise finding out the calibre of your audience in advance.

I suspect that will be a difficulty. If you can make it fit in with writing a little book, I should strongly advise you to do so. You will probably have to work out a good many things in greater detail than you can then say or publish. I hope this would make the bigger work more, not less worth while.
