CRIPPS'S CORNER,

FOREST ROW,

SUSSEX.

My dear Fisher,

I have made enquiry about the opening of letters at the Office. Lady Chambers gave directions that those addressed to her were to be opened. Those addressed to me were opened. When she was before - Mrs H, I mean
- she opened all letters except any marked 'private.'
She evidently thought it all right or she would never have sent the one to Freeman on to him with a note of her own. He took it as not out of the way. But as objections are raised no letter will in future be opened.

The great Carnegie had all his letters opened, except such as were marked 'private' and they were burnt unread, as he felt so sure that they were five beggars !

Yours truly
