

March 12th 1923

Cripps's Corner
Front Row
Sussex.
RURREV.

My dear Fisher.

Thanks for yours. My impression is that it would be useless sending your note again for publication - but it is but an impression.

I forget exactly what I said in my last letter, and only to make it clear, if it was not so before, my opinion is that resignation is not your wisest course, though I am under the impression that you have been badly treated.

But that of course is your affair. Have you ever thought of talking the matter over with Gule before taking any such action? He is in a superior position to Mallet or myself in being able to understand the merits of the case. He probably comes to London sometimes, and would doubtless see you. Do think this over.

I forgot to tell you that Greenwood is not the Senior Editor, but I believe he is one of the crew. One reason that I want peace for is not to perpetuate the row between the Galton Lab. and ourselves. But I see that argument cannot be carried far.

Excuse a scrawl, as I am not too fit today

Yours sincerely

D. Dawkins