Dear Fisher

Possibly one or two points on this true some Nora March incident - may not be clear to you, so I scribble them down hastily. Miss Brown wrote "on her own". I understood her to say, in the first instance in the papers, certainly ^{afterwards} consulting me. I did ^{say} I approved of her sentiments. In her letter she spoke of -

"Mrs March's demand for Extra-marital relationships" or some such phrase. When I read the extract it seemed to me Mrs March only spoke of such a demand arising, not as to her making it, which is a very different thing. Mrs Brown sent me a second letter she thought of sending to the press, expressing regret in a way which seemed to me most dangerous. As President I sought the advice of such hon. officers as I could get hold of at once. I called no meeting, and acted on my own responsibility in advising a different letter to be sent. Since then I have decided to consult a solicitor. I think she may have a case against us.

[My Father made an erroneous statement about S. Butler. Huxley & some other big men advised him not to apologize.

The family wanted him to own his ^{share} ~~share~~ mistake. We have reported for 40 years that he did not follow our advice.

Yours harshly

L Dawson
