CRIPPS CORNER,
FOREST ROW,
SUSSEX.

Dear Fisher.

The last thing I wrote to you was a post-script on a letter which ought to have been posted the week before, it having remained concealed under some papers in the interval. Please see post-card from German herewith; also my reply to him, which kindly post if you see no objection to what I have written. Since writing said p.s. I have been in bed with a cold, the only harmful effect being to make me extra stupid. I wish much I could have a chance of climbing your stairs, and write let-

You know if I do see such an opportunity. I am still a tolerable hill climber. I wonder how many feet up you are. As to the Galtner remains, I can express no very definite opinion with ^{out} seeing them. After compiling the huge life, I should expect that K.P. left nothing of value unsorted or mis-disposed of. I should decidedly advise leaving it alone for the present - at all events. There are loads of young women wanting a job like yours. But it is not quite easy to get the right sort. I know of one whom I can confidently not recommend! There must be many ^{from} ~~at~~ Murray College, which is, I believe, the largest women's college in London. Given from our bed, this
