

25th. October 1946.

My dear Henry,

Thank you so much for your letter. I know how busy you are and I really was afraid of taking up too much of your time during the term by making a longer stay. Your letter removes my anxiety on this head and I should greatly enjoy, as you press me, to stay two nights rather than one.

I propose then to travel by Blechley on Thursday afternoon, November 14th., arriving supposedly at 6.34 pm., so as to see you that evening, and be free also during Friday in Oxford.

Thank you so much for making this possible. I hope you will tell Finney, as he may look for me on the train on Friday.

Yours sincerely,
