

All Souls College,
Oxford.

May 23rd 1961.

My dear Ron,

Owing to Bank Holiday, I only received your letter today, Tuesday.

It is delightful to hear that you will be able to come and stay in All Souls, arriving next Monday, May 29th. I will meet your railway train, arriving at 12.58. It will be wonderful to be with you again, my dear Ron.

Would you please let me know by return for how long you will be able to stay with me (you only say you are arriving on May 29th). It is most important for me to know for how many nights I am to work a room in College. Also I am pretty full up with engagements myself, and I need to know how to fit in my fine table.

It will be grand to see you.

Yours affectionately,
Henry.
