My dear Ron,

Thank you indeed for such a delightful and helpful note-let. It was so great a pleasure to be with you and to have the opportunity, which I value beyond everything, of discussing our interests together.

I am so grateful for all your help and suggestions with my data. I will put out the recapture numbers as groups of second, and further, catches; and then if you could at some time consider the possibility of extracting information from them on the question of whether marking materially shortens the insects' life, that would be a most material matter.

With my grateful thanks,

Yours truly,

Henry
