My dear Fisher:

There is one point I forgot to mention to you. Could you bring with you on Tuesday the list of birds which you are doing the variability for? I think I could probably get the relative abundance of them pretty well estimated by E.M. Nicholson, who is a friend of mine - you know, the man who has done all the bird census work. He at any rate would not be afraid to commit himself, as apparently Lowe is.

I hope the 14th will be all right for the Committee. If not, I should imagine the 22nd could be arranged, though, as I say, I shall probably be going off that evening.

Yours ever,

Mr Julian S. Huxley.
